Ready To Play?

We just launched our new “Ready To Play?” advertising campaign across the country. Through this campaign, AHF is working to educate people on the importance of testing before and after play.

This message is always relevant but even more important with the recent spread of monkeypox. Anyone who has multiple sexual partners should visit an AHF Wellness Center, testing location, or testing van regularly.

To help get the word out, please join us in posting about the “Ready To Play” campaign on Twitter. Simply scan the QR code and hit send!

Just a Prick

We’ve also launched our new “Just a Prick” advertising campaign across the country. This campaign reminds the public that HIV is still a threat to public health and that we must remain steadfast in our mission to prevent, test, and treat HIV. To help get the word out so that more people stay vigilant in fighting HIV, you can also post “Just a Prick” on Twitter. It’s easy. Scan the QR code and tweet!

#ProtectTheChild launches to Empower Africa’s Youth!

Country teams across the AHF Africa Bureau recently launched the “Protect the Child” campaign as part of the Day of the African Child (DAC) celebrations, reaching thousands of young people with age-appropriate comprehensive sexual health education (CSE) initiatives. The campaign also provided HIV/STI testing, comprehensive health screenings, and counseling for students in secondary schools.

The campaign specifically advocates for the health of African youth, who are disproportionately affected by HIV. Research shows CSE significantly decreases rates of HIV, other STIs, and unplanned pregnancies. Despite this, it remains a contentious issue in sub-Saharan Africa, getting pushback from religious and community leaders and even some governments.

Besides health services and CSE, DAC events included engaging activities such as theater, dances, poetry readings, and art displays created by participating youth. The campaign will continue for the next few months — but mark your calendars for International Day of the Girl Child in October when the AHF Africa Bureau plans to unveil expanded Protect the Child initiatives!

YOUNG • INFORMED • HEALTHY • DIGNIFIED

Lesotho events offered workshops on communications and vocational training for young women.

Students from 11 schools in Mozambique received cancer screenings and family planning services.

Advocates at events in South Africa distributed condoms and broke barriers to treatment for youth.

Girls Act ambassadors in Eswatini led PTC celebrations focused on CSE in their communities.

Over 100 youth in Sierra Leone held a Q&A session and gave inputs on improving community CSE programs.

CSE advocates in Zimbabwe hosted discussions on live TV with health and policy experts.

WeHo Hosts Monkeypox Town Hall

Let's go back to the basics for a moment. A town hall meeting isn't exactly what it sounds like. In 2022, it is not a literal meeting of town residents. The goal of a town hall meeting in today's climate is to keep your employees, team and your community up to date on specific information. It is an approachable forum to have voices heard, challenge the facts presented and more importantly, ask tough questions.

On a warm Wednesday evening in late July in the city of West Hollywood, an actor along with doctors, clinicians, epidemiologists, and community partners, took a very important step and came together to take part in the first town hall meeting to examine the state of monkeypox and exchange views on the outbreak. Hosted by LA Blade Magazine and publisher Troy Masters, this two-hour key event was an open conversation inside the West Hollywood City Council Chambers. Moderated by KTLA Reporter, John Fenoglio, he stuck to the agenda and broke the ice by establishing a healthy, welcoming and open environment for the panel to discuss the monkeypox virus and the stigma surrounding it.

At the time, not yet declared a public health emergency, monkeypox is a shared problem that is growing. It is a crisis with no room for blame. "A virus anywhere is a problem everywhere," stated Troy Masters. The event kicked off with the reading of a profound letter from Congressman Adam Schiff. The congressman accused the federal government of falling short on the response that is needed to confront the monkeypox virus. Amid reports of the lack of vaccines and absence of information for healthcare providers, the letter also urged the Biden Administration to step up and take action.

Dr. Leo Moore, Medical Director for Clinic Services at the Los Angeles County Department of Public Health was the first on the panel to take the podium. Dr. Moore provided what he referred to as situational updates on the dramatic rise in cases and contact tracing. Though the entire panel debunked monkeypox as an STD, everyone agrees that it is a virus that can infect anyone; particularly impacting gay and bisexual men.

While Dr. Andrea Kim talked about the steps being taken to ensure a vaccine strategy creating public health pods and the pre-registration of slots to receive the vaccine, Don Wohlfeiler, Co-Founder at Building Healthy Online Communities and Translator, focused on outreach the mental health, space, and acceptance that is needed for someone who is struggling with a positive monkeypox diagnosis.

Though criticism from LBGTQ activists was a common theme, everyone demands to know how they fit into the large-scale trajectory of resources and outreach efforts.

This town hall meeting was a powerful moment. Other than coming together, there was no real success to celebrate. It simply became a night to reinforce culture and values and help people feel connected. Because now, more than ever, it is needed. AHF has been calling on the Los Angeles County Department of Public Health to ramp up public education on the virus and its prevention, and the organization has proposed a 6-point plan to manage the spread.

AHF was among the first to sound the alarm on monkeypox, helping vital information get to at-risk communities by holding teleconferences on the outbreak.

To learn more about the signs and treatment of monkeypox, please scan this QR code and visit AHF's information site.

Monkeypox Response: AHF's 6-Point Plan for the Los Angeles County Department of Public Health

1. The Los Angeles County Department of Public Health should conduct twice weekly public briefings outlining the number of new cases and where they are occurring.
2. Warnings to the gay and bisexual male population should be launched by DPH online, in newspapers and in outdoor advertising advising men to watch for

- symptoms; avoid group sexual situations; consult a doctor if you have symptoms indicative of monkeypox, and isolate if you are diagnosed.
3. Require signs to be posted in commercial sex venues and via banner or other ads on hookup applications.
4. Lobby the federal government to supply

- vaccine on an emergency basis.
5. Regularly engage community partners to assist the Department of Public Health in prevention, testing, vaccination and treatment of monkeypox.
6. Engage universities to initiate studies to determine the changed characteristics of monkeypox in the current pandemic.

AHF Uganda Cares Turns 20!

One of AIDS Healthcare Foundation's first and longest-running global treatment programs, AHF Uganda Cares, celebrated a momentous milestone last month in the city of Masaka—its 20th anniversary of lifesaving work in the country!

“From a little acorn seed, a mighty oak has grown—that’s how I can best describe the growth of the Uganda Cares program from its humble beginnings in the old private wing of the Masaka Regional Referral Hospital,” said Dr. Penninah Iutung, AHF Africa Bureau Chief. “The program’s evolution since then has been a sight to behold—Uganda Cares has shown how people living with HIV can thrive with access to antiretroviral therapy. We must thank our supportive government and NGO partners, the community, and our dedicated staff and clients. Together, we will continue keeping the promise to control HIV/AIDS in Uganda and across the continent.”

Through a partnership with the ministry of health, Uganda Cares first began providing lifesaving antiretroviral treatment (ART) to 100 patients in 2002. Since then, the program has expanded to become one of the country’s largest providers of free HIV/AIDS care and treatment, delivering services to more than 144,000 clients across 15 districts and 64 health facilities.

The commemoration in Masaka included a concert featuring Ugandan celebrity performers that entertained thousands of people, an inspiring youth talent show, and a press conference with government and civil society partners covered by multiple media outlets.

The program also included discussions on HIV-related topics on five radio shows, social media activations by youth advocates, and a televised documentary. Pop-up medical services also reached hundreds in Masaka with cervical cancer screenings, HIV testing and counseling, and other general health services.

“These celebrations reflect the culmination of twenty years of working to keep Ugandans living with HIV on treatment and prevent new infections,” added AHF Uganda Cares Country Program Director Henry Magala. “The success of the Uganda Cares program is a testament to what can be achieved when government and civil society work together to save lives by ensuring access to treatment and working to end HIV stigma. The last two decades have been successful, but we’re not stopping here. We’ll continue working to keep the promise and control the country’s HIV epidemic, particularly among the young people, by sustaining prevention and treatment interventions while enhancing collaboration with partners at all levels.”

Uganda Cares has achieved many milestones over the years, including being recognized by UNAIDS and the World Health Organization (WHO) as a best practice model for delivering ART, implementing essential HIV and STI prevention services, including condom distribution campaigns that saved countless lives, and launching AHF’s successful Girls Act program in 2016.

The 20th anniversary celebration for Uganda Cares is just one of several upcoming AHF Africa country programs commemorating their start on the continent. Be on the lookout for more exciting coverage in the coming months!

Broward House: We Are Your People

If you are facing food insecurity or housing challenges and walk through the glass doors of Broward House, you are on the right path. If you’re striving to get out of a dark mental cycle that’s been keeping you stuck, Broward House will be there. Established in 1988, Broward House is one of the largest, independent, non-profit organizations in South Florida with the incredible mission of supporting and serving both men and women touched by HIV/AIDS. Client-centered and team centered, Broward House is a welcoming environment offering educational and preventional programs, as well as substance abuse treatment programs. Broward House not only aims to be the change, but to continue to make meaningful differences for everyone and anyone who needs it.

To have an understanding of Broward House and the crew that bends over backwards to make it all happen, we talked with 20 year veteran and CEO Stacy Hyde about why Broward House is that light at the end of so many tunnels.

Q: What makes Broward House different?

Stacy Hyde, CEO: We adapt to each need and person who walks through the door. We recognize that cultural proficiency means treating each person as a unique individual who deserves to be seen and heard. Our stellar leadership team started in direct service positions and will take every step necessary to meet the client where they are literally and figuratively.

Q: Why do we need Broward House?

Stacy Hyde, CEO: The impact of HIV, housing instability, addiction and stigma continue to have a staggering burden. Broward House has a strong foundation and the ability to implement true harm reduction. We are committed to mental health and substance abuse treatment services and continue to educate ourselves so that we may improve and expand.

Q: What changes are up and coming to Broward House?

Stacy Hyde, CEO: We are excited to strengthen our partnership with AHF and the pharmacy team. Next year, we will be joining the AHF main campus with some of our staff and expanding our client service Center location in Wilton Manors.

As we continue to grow our Behavioral Health programs, our 10 independent living properties are undergoing structural repairs, in an effort to continue to provide stable housing to the families who live there. And our largest fundraiser the SMART Ride is coming up in November.

About The SMART Ride

The SMART Ride is the Southern-most HIV/AIDS Ride in the US, and has become the second-largest HIV/AIDS bicycle ride in the country. It is the only one of its size to give back 100% to ASOs throughout Florida.

BACK IN BLACC

CONTINUING THE CONVERSATION ABOUT HIV

“Of all the forms of inequality, injustice in healthcare is the most shocking and inhumane.”

Many companies and individuals have started non-profits to save our planet. Some wanted to support, honor, or encourage members of their community. While for others, launching a non-profit business is all about credibility, goodwill, or generating exposure to a movement. However, when you want to build a better future and shine a light on the social justice issues disproportionately impacting the health and wellness of Black Americans; where do you go?

The answer is BLACC—The Black Leadership AIDS Crisis Coalition. Powered by AHF and taking charge of issues close to their hearts, BLACC was built to create an alliance of Black-American cultural influencers and health advocates who want to share knowledge and expertise, while at the same time promoting education and awareness surrounding sexual health and wellness.

The objective of this member-led group is to continue to position itself as a top resource, while addressing the systemic racial barriers that impact African Americans still struggling to achieve healthier lifestyles. When the pandemic exacerbated the deep fissures in our nation’s health care system, BLACC was there uplifting their collective voices. BLACC focuses on creating a pathway for equal healthcare access, donating to the cause, and advancing humanity. Since its inception, valiant BLACC members have been instrumental in their efforts to increase an open door to HIV education, testing, treatment, and prevention services.

In 2020, Black Americans represented 12% of the U.S. population aged 13 and older, but 43% of all new HIV diagnoses. Last year, in support of National Black HIV/AIDS Awareness Day, BLACC became stronger in numbers when they announced a partnership with iN-Hale Entertainment and All Tea No Shade Productions to take a stand against stigma, with the theme, “Stigma Gotta Go.”

BLACC also recently attended the 2022 National Association of Black Journalists and National Association of Hispanic Journalists

conference in Las Vegas to build relationships with black writers, producers, and news professionals who share news in and about the Black community with compassion and authenticity. By creating these vital media partnerships, BLACC’s work in awareness, education, and prevention of HIV/AIDS can reach a wider audience and have a positive impact on communities of color.

BLACC has done more than simply join the conversation about the myriad of health and economic inequities experienced by Black Americans. BLACC is a great societal shift. They speak up. They speak out. BLACC is a new collective movement—too loud to ignore.

Movies that Matter

Top 5 Must-Watch Movies about HIV/AIDS

When you watch a really good movie, it’s like a gravitational pull. Every scene has layers and the characters infuse the film with an effervescent chemistry and energy that transcends the time it was created.

Movies also have the power to shed light on a dark subject. Here is a short, yet thoughtful list of five distinctive films you may want to Netflix and Chill.

Angels in America (2003)

 90%  95%

Set in 1980’s New York, this engaging story explores the lives of people who have HIV. With its universal themes, prepared to be deeply engrossed by the humor, and unexpected twists and turns. Thoughtfully groundbreaking, this series is alive with unique moments that will immerse you into the story and its characters that swirl in and out of each other’s lives.

Gia (1998)

 93%  82%

One of the first women reported to die of AIDS in 1986, Academy Award Winner Angelina Jolie sets fire to the screen with a haunting portrayal of “Gia.” Rising from humble Philadelphian beginnings, Gia Carangi was a high-profiled fashion model. With a tough exterior, Jolie’s depiction is a work of art. She brilliantly takes you on an unforgettable journey.

Dallas Buyers Club (2013)

 92%  91%

Matthew McConaughey won the Best Actor Oscar for playing the unlikeable crusader Ron Woodroof, a Texas party-boy who became a beacon of hope for AIDS patients. Diagnosed with AIDS, Ron Woodroof opposed and fought the medical industry and Pharmaceutical companies by selling HIV treatments that were not authorized in the U.S.

Boys on the Side (1995)

Absorbing, funny and an incredibly self-aware comedy-drama featuring Whoopi

Goldberg as a lesbian, who reluctantly embarks on a road trip with Robin, played by Mary-Louise Parker. With Drew Barrymore as a young woman escaping an abusive relationship, this film artfully celebrates an everlasting bond these women share after Robin is diagnosed with HIV.

Philadelphia (1993)

 79%  89%

It would be a crime against cinema not to mention this movie. Hollywood’s first big-budget film about HIV/AIDS starred two contrasting characters fighting for justice. Tom Hanks plays Lawyer Andrew Beckett, a man who hides his homosexuality and HIV status, teams up with homophobic Lawyer, Joe Miller played Denzel Washington, the only person willing to help him. Brilliant. Eloquent. Hits all the right notes.
